

March 2019

Exhibit shines a light on African American nannies

"Framing Shadows: Portraits of Nannies from the Robert Langmuir African American Photograph Collection," now on view at Emory's Woodruff Library, encourages visitors to look beyond stereotypes and consider the lives of the women and young girls who cared for the children of white families.

READ MORE

Register for Recording Queer ATL on March 20

"The American Music Show," a groundbreaking queer public access TV program produced in Atlanta from 1981 to 2005, left an important legacy for the city's LGBTQ community. This event will include a screening of the show, a Q&A and discussion with some of the show's original cast members, and a reception.

REGISTER
NOW

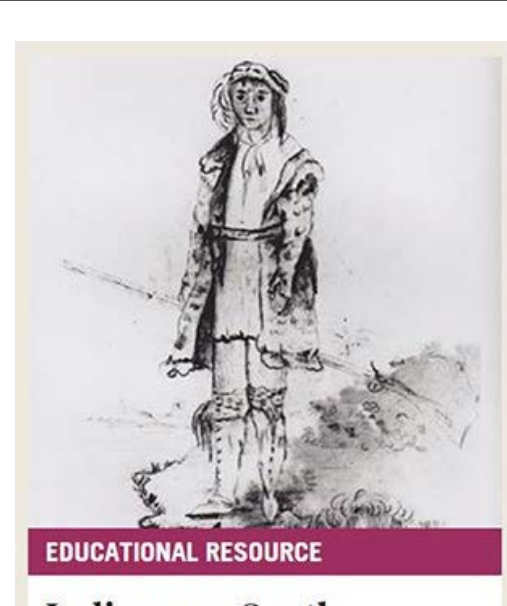

All Our Children: A staged reading of Stephen Unwin's play

On March 27, beginning at 4pm, British playwright Stephen Unwin will be on Emory's campus for a staged reading of his play, "All Our Children," which presents the story of the Nazi extermination of disabled children.

The reading will be followed by a conversation with Unwin and Emory professors Rosemarie Garland-Thomson and Deborah Lipstadt.

REGISTER NOW

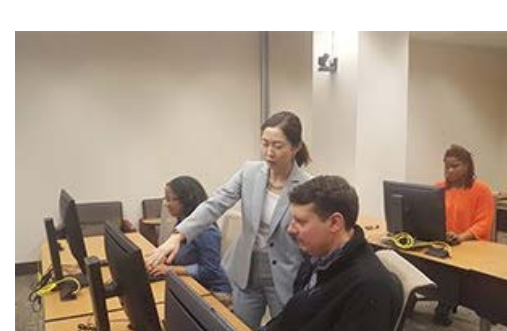

Southern Spaces provides educational resources

The online journal Southern Spaces offers a growing collection of educational resources developed for teachers, students, and researchers, based on the well-researched articles in its publications.

Topics include Women and Gender, Indigenous Souths, Politics and Government, Reading and Writing Souths, Queer Souths, and Religion.

READ MORE

Health Sciences library offers workshops and classes

Woodruff Health Sciences Center Library provides an array of classes and workshops, led mostly by its informationists, to help Emory faculty, staff, and students with a variety of tools.

PubMed for Public Health, Grey Literature, and Planning for a Systematic Review are a few of the upcoming sessions listed.

READ MORE

SUBSCRIBE TO KEYWORDS

KEYWORDS
ARCHIVE

LIBRARY NEWS
& CALENDAR

MAKE A GIFT

libraries.emory.edu