

October 2021

A frighteningly great trivia night

Join us for our Bram Stoker Trivia Night on Oct. 22 at 6 p.m. as part of Emory University's Homecoming 2021. This virtual event celebrates the Rose Library's acquisition of the world's most comprehensive collection of Bram Stoker materials. Play in teams or individually, or just come to watch and learn fun facts about Dracula and related material. This event is open to the public at no charge.

Register now

Decatur Book Festival is tomorrow

A reminder that the one-day Decatur Book Festival, presented by Emory University, is tomorrow, Saturday, Oct. 2, at First Baptist Church of Decatur. In-person and online author sessions begin at 10 a.m. Two Emory faculty members will speak: African American Studies professor Dr. Carol Anderson will discuss her new book on race and the Second Amendment at 10:15 a.m., and Creative Writing associate professor and author Tiphonie Yanique will take part in a literary fiction panel at 12:45 p.m.

Reserve your spot

Apollo 15 exhibit open in Woodruff Library

Take a vicarious trip to the moon by visiting the Apollo 15 exhibit, now fully open on Level 3 of the Woodruff Library on the Emory campus. You'll find materials from the NASA archives and from the papers of mission Cmdr. David R. Scott and Anne Lurton Scott papers, held by the Rose Library. The standout piece is the planetarium-like experience in the rotunda gallery, where viewers can enjoy images of the moon's surface and astronaut activity projected onto the ceiling.

Learn more

Facebook Twitter Instagram YouTube

Subscribe to Keywords

Keywords archive

Library news

Make a gift